- It was agreed by all that Values are essentially needed at all levels in Education, Parenting, Teaching, Teachers, Culture at home and in school, in books, etc. It is true that Values are easy to inculcate at an early age.
- Awareness and concern about Environment, and efforts to be taken to develop and sustain an Environment-friendly lifestyle were focused upon. Education plays a critical role in making this an attitude.
- Skill alignment occurs too late. Latent talent of children must be correctly identified and nurtured from a young age so that children can concentrate on relevant skills.
- Education should be the medium of best learning about our nation. Ancient and modern history, anecdotes must be imparted to instill the national pride and gratitude towards ancient wisdom, ancient and modern wise men and women.
- If at all any qualitative and academic improvements in students are to be realized, these will primarily happen through teachers. There was also a discussion on how the quality of teachers should be improved.
- Two essential skills – Leadership and Innovation – should become a practical part of human development. These cannot be realized by simply including them in the curriculum. Schools need freedom to incorporate certain other programmes as would be relevant.
- Assessment techniques need to be improved upon.
- For teaching and learning to be effective, teachers must bring creativity in their work, by regularly doing something valuable while teaching so that revolutionary changes could be brought about in the lives of students.

We owe it to our future generations that they must be taught correct undistorted history of Bharat, which has hundreds of valiant warriors, who successfully fought bravely to ward off military and cultural invasions. Gen-Next must be made aware of and must take pride in our rich heritage and culture.
